MISCELLANEOUS ADVERTISEMENTS.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 26.

The president has a difficult task on hand. It is reported by a democratic paper that he is trying to make something respectable out of the democratic party. Can't be done. Can't teach an old dog new tricks.

The Railroad Gazette of the 23d reports a total of seven miles of new track on two lines, making in all fourteen miles thus far reported for the current year. The new track reported to the corresponding dates for three years has been: 1883, 12 miles; 1884, 27; 1885, 37.

The only surviving ex-members of the cabinet of ante-bellum days are George S. Boutwell, secretary of the navy under President Polk; Jefferson Davis, secretary of war under President Pierce; Joseph Holt, secretary of war, and Horatio King, postmaster-general under President Buchanan.

The congressional committee appointed to accompany the remains of the late Mr. Rankin, of Wisconsin, consists of Senators Sawyer, Blackburn and Jones; and Congressmen Black, Van Schaick, Stephenson, Guenther, Oakton, Henderson, and Johnson. The funeral will likely take place on Friday.

An English statistician shows that since 1793 wars among civilized nations have caused the death of 4,470,000 men. A large majority of these deaths resulted from wounds, hardships and disease, the number actually killed on the field being comparatively small. The bloodiest battle in the period named was Bormio, where 250,000 men were engaged and 17,000 were placed hors de combat.

A dispatch from the City of Mexico, under date of the 23d says "It is probable that the government will propose to the United States, the holding of a special monetary conference in relation to the legalized depreciation of the Mexican dollar in the United States as compared with the gold dollar. It begins to be believed here that in England public opinion is against a gold standard, and it is hoped that the United States congress will not consent to the stoppage of silver coinage."

To show how thoroughly dishonest these underground insurance companies are in their methods of doing business, it is only necessary to state that in one of the suits instituted against one of the companies in the Oshkosh circuit, the defense is set up by the company itself, that the policy is void, because it was issued contrary to the laws of Wisconsin. On this ground the company seeks to evade the responsibility of paying losses under one of its wild-cat policies.

The remains of the late Colonel Abel Smith, a veteran of the war for the independence of Texas, arrived at Austin, Texas, from Houston on Saturday night, escorted by a military guard. Many thousands took a farewell view of the familiar features of the veteran hero as the remains lay in the hall of the house of representatives. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon with imposing military ceremonies, all the state officials and university students participating. The body was interred in the State's cemetery, where General Albert Sidney Johnston and other famous Texans rest.

The honored position of being the principal eulogist of the late Vice President Hendricks, has been given to Senator Spooner, of this state. This may seem strange to a good many who do not know the young senator from Wisconsin. The senate may have some able men than John C. Spooner. It may have seemed to the public more in keeping with the fitness of things to select some one who knew Mr. Hendricks more intimately than Senator Spooner did, who have served in the senate for a longer term than he, and who had a wider reputation as an orator. But the United States senate does not contain a more fitting man than he for the duty assigned to him. He is a splendid orator, and is so thoroughly discreet on such occasions that he will pronounce in every way a fitting eulogy on the late vice president.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a sure remedy for Catarrh, Colds in the Head and Hay Fever. It is not a liquid or a snuff, but is easily applied with the finger. It gives relief at once. Price 50 cents.

I have had nasal catarrh for two years so bad that there were great sores in my nose, and one place was eaten through. I got Ely's Cream Balm. Two bottles cured me. My nose and head is well. I feel like another man.—O. S. McMillen, Sibley, Jackson Co., Mo.

Quantity Decreasing, Quality Improving. A study of statistical facts has made it apparent that human life is increasing in quantity but improving in quality at least in some parts of the world. An astonishing falling off in the birth rate has taken place since the beginning of the century. The average number of children per marriage having been reduced nearly one fourth. But the average life has increased in length about one-half. Similar results are obtained in England, Austria, Prussia and other countries of advanced civilization. Among inferior races birth rate is more numerous and life is shorter. In general the lower species of plants and animals are more than the higher. The female of the white ant lays sixty eggs per minute; a queen bee from 5,000 to 6,000 eggs annually. In vertebrates, fecundity diminishes as we rise from fishes to reptiles, from reptiles to birds, from birds to mammals.—Boston Budget.

The Parisian idea of arranging fruit upon a bed of flowers, and a pretty one it is, is worth with deserved favor.

Advice to Mothers. Mrs. Winstons' Sore Throat Remedy should be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. 25c a bottle.

DEFIANTLY INVITING ANYBODY TO STAND IN HER WAY.

Turkey Sends an Ultimatum and Gets Her Guns in Order.—A Decidedly Black War Cloud—European Iron-Clads Making Ready—Effect on English Politics.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—In an interview with a cable news representative the Greek prime minister declared that Greece would fight to the bitter end for her rights, that she was entitled to Epirus and Thessaly, and can whip Turkey if England will keep her hands off. The treaty of Berlin had been violated by Bulgaria and Greece was justified in a resort to arms if necessary to obtain what she was entitled to.

All the six powers have joined in a notice to Greece that she will not be permitted to fight and England and Germany are preparing their fleets to enforce the notification.

Turkey has delivered an ultimatum to Greece, notifying the Greek government that the presence of the Greek fleet off the coast of war, she will be regarded as a menace to Turkey and a violation of the treaty of Berlin.

Five battalions of Turkish troops have left Salonica for the Greek frontier since Thursday. The Turkish troops on the Greek frontier now consist of ninety-seven battalions of infantry, with a proportionate force of artillery and cavalry, together with a large body of Albanian auxiliaries and Asiatic irregulars. Each battalion has been brought up to full fighting strength. The regulars, unlike the majority of the Turkish regiments recently sent to the front, are, as a rule, well clothed, and armed with Martini-Enfields.

The British admiralty expects the iron-clad squadron, under orders to support Turkey, to be joined by other war ships, probably those of France, Italy and Germany, in the naval demonstration.

The British squadron is stated to have orders, if necessary, to co-operate with the Turkish fleet in the defense of the Turkish coast against the Greek cruisers now at sea. The movement of the government in ordering the British fleet to support Turkey is bitterly assailed by the English Radical leaders, and the Irish question is temporarily eclipsed.

The general aspect of parliamentary affairs and the drift of argument and comment in well-informed circles warrant the belief that the Liberals intend to propose a motion in the house of commons censuring the government for having attempted to coerce Greece into abandoning her belligerent attitude toward Turkey.

The recent frequent exchange of official dispatches between the London and Athens governments has been a source of infinite trouble and annoyance to the ministers, as well as several of the cabinet officers themselves, maintain that the gravity of the situation—the danger that the ill-considered action of the Greek government might lead to unforeseen and calamitous—justified the action on the part of the British government which the Liberals choose to characterize as coercion.

They say that the Greek government might lead to unforeseen and calamitous—justified the action on the part of the British government which the Liberals choose to characterize as coercion. They say that the Greek government might lead to unforeseen and calamitous—justified the action on the part of the British government which the Liberals choose to characterize as coercion.

The sudden importance assumed by the Greek question is likely to furnish Lord Salisbury an opportunity for retiring from office on a question of foreign rather than of domestic policy. This is a fortunate thing for him. It has for the past forty-eight hours been considered that the Greek prime minister, and from time immemorial it has been considered less humiliating for a British prime minister to be defeated on a question of foreign policy than one of local administration. His retirement and the reversal of the policy which ordered Greece to disarm will relegate that bantam nation into its normal unimportance by removing the pretext for its inflammatory bragadoos. Then Mr. Gladstone, favored back upon home issues, will find himself faced by the perplexities of one compelled to formulate a government policy while yet uncertain of his following. The real question to which England is willing to go in concessions to Ireland will then be tested. All that is known now is that Lord Salisbury's policy of no concession at all does not command a majority. Mr. Gladstone, however, will have a difficult task to get a majority of Whigs and moderate Conservatives who will be willing to make concessions to Ireland and still not be controlled by him by reason of his holding nearly six votes on questions of general policy. No one is so confident of his ability to do this as the "Grand Old Man."

A Strong Government Necessary. LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Standard complains that Mr. Gladstone's silence will embarrass the government. The Parliament is greatly excited, looking to the Liberals to accede to their demands. The Standard urges Lord Salisbury to decide his fate by that of the procedure rules. "If the conservative government must fall, let it fall with honor. It is necessary to face events in Greece and in the Balkans. It is necessary to have a strong government—a government that is able to speak with authority for the English people."

Corruption to Come First. LONDON, Jan. 25.—The government has resolved that the Irish coercion measures shall take precedence in the procedure of parliamentary business and the charge of front on the part of the Tories has surprised everybody. The talk in political circles indicates a feeling of confidence on both sides that a test of strength upon the questions of a motion to censure, and the disposition of the measure providing for a more rigorous government of Ireland will result favorable to them.

Proposing to Tax Foreign Workmen. PARIS, Jan. 25.—A bill was introduced in the chamber Monday to tax foreign workmen. Another bill was introduced excluding foreign workmen from employment on government contracts.

Biggest Oyster Yet for Paris. LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Daily Telegraph states that Paris has been offered $5,000 a night to sing in Brazil.

He Watches the Giddy Whirl at Balmore—Police Prohibitions.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 25.—The grand charity ball held Monday night at the Academy of Music for the benefit of the Society for the Protection of Children was a great success. Many tickets were sold on the strength of the announcement that the president of the United States would attend. President Cleveland and party, consisting of Col. Landon and wife, Mrs. Endicott and daughter, Miss Vitas, Marshall Wilson, wife and daughter, and Senator and Mrs. Gorman came over from Washington by a special car on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The presidential party arrived at Camden station at 10:25, and were at once driven to the Academy of Music. As the president alighted from his carriage, he was heartily cheered by the crowd. The party were escorted to South end, where they rested for fifteen minutes.

At the end of that time a procession was formed and led by President Cleveland and Mrs. Ridgely Goodwin proceeded to the first procession box on the right, which was reserved for the use of himself and party. The president seemed greatly interested in the brilliant scene before him and apparently enjoyed watching the giddy whirl on the dancing floor. The entire party were in full evening dress. Mr. Cleveland and party left the academy at 12:07 o'clock. They were rapidly driven to Camden station where a special train was awaiting and left for Washington at 12:20. Great precautions were taken by the police and detectives during Mr. Cleveland's stay, the ladies of the academy and the streets in front of the building being patrolled by blue-coats and officers in citizens' dress.

PROHIBITION VICTORY. Town Case Sent from the United States to the State Courts.

KEOSAU, Iowa, Jan. 25.—Judge Love, in the United States court, Monday, remanded the saloon cases to the state courts. The opinion held that as it was not claimed that the Iowa prohibitory law involved any question of the United States statutes, the issue was determined by whether it was a violation of the federal constitution and that such was not the case. This settles the case into the federal court and that the state prohibitory law is valid as to them. Saloon men, owning property prior to the adoption of this law, which was no more adapted to the sale of lawful commodities than to unlawful, are bound by it. Saloon-keepers will have to fight their battles in the state courts. Their decisions have before fully sustained the law. Brewers will escape, as their cases will go to the federal courts.

A St. Louis Divorce Sensation. ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25.—Amelia Coquard was granted a divorce Monday from Louis Coquard, broker and banker, on the ground of his insanity. The case was heard by Judge Rogers, who called her wife names and charged her with infidelity. She said in her petition, also, that in the last two years he had not been at home 100 nights. He made no answer to the petition and the only question the court was one of alimony. She claimed that he was worth $300,000, and other witnesses testified that he had made the same claim. His property was in stocks and bonds and the value of it could not be ascertained through the witnesses for the wife, and he did not appear at all. The court granted the divorce, and allowed the wife $10,000 and her maiden name. She is the daughter of a noted Presbyterian minister, and the family moved in the best society. They were married nine years. They had no children.

Told to Mind His Own Business. CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A. S. Trade, who drew up the will in dispute in the Storey case now being tried before Judge Rogers, testified Monday that he took the draft of the will to Mr. Storey's residence in June, 1878. He called Mr. Storey's attention to a provision in it affecting the interests of Mrs. Parratt and Asen L. Storey. THE PACIFIC RAILWAYS.
A BILL TO COLLECT THE MONEY THEY OWE UNCLE SAM.
And an Amendment to the Future Management of the Railroad Problem—Feeling the President's Pulse—Orthographical.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Senator Hoar, for the judiciary committee, reported a bill for the collection by the government of the sums due it by the Pacific railroads. This bill provided for the payment by the railroads of their indebtedness in twenty annual installments, the amount of the indebtedness being determined by the government. Senator Wilson, of Iowa, offered an amendment providing an appropriation of a sufficient amount, to be held subject to the president's discretion, with authority conferred on the president, in case the first mortgage bondholders made any effort to foreclose, to secure the government's interest by redeeming the first-mortgage bonds and taking the roads, the attorney general being instructed to take the necessary steps to have the government subrogated to the rights of the bondholders.

Senator Wilson is confident that the railroad managers of the country would be afraid to let the government own and operate a great trunk line, but his rates would control theirs, and that they would for that reason take good care that the first mortgage bondholders would never be allowed to foreclose on the government by foreclosing their mortgage. But if they did allow such a course to be taken, his amendment would save the government from being forced to pay the bonds. The bill would also provide for the redemption of the bonds by the government, and the government would then be in a position to solve the whole railroad problem of the country, because it controlled the great transcontinental line with its connections and ramifications. Its policy would regulate the rates of all other lines under the operation of the general law of trade.

The bill provides that the Union Pacific and the Great Pacific, the central branch of the Union Pacific, and the Sioux City & Pacific be authorized to make, issue, and deliver to the holders of the bonds, 100 bonds of redemption, each bearing date of the 1st day of October, 1890, one of which bonds shall mature on the 1st of April, 1897, and one thereafter at the expiration of six months of each year thereafter, from that date, and that such of such bonds shall be for the same sum, which sum shall be ascertained by adding to the balance of said indebtedness, computed and ascertained as provided in section 1 of the bill, the rate of 3 per cent per annum from the said 1st day of October to the average date of maturity of said bonds, and dividing such aggregate amount by 100.

Summary of Congressional Work.
WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—A letter was received at the Senate Monday from the president of the Union Pacific, in answer to the question as to what proportion of the bonds could be redeemed by the national banks as basis for circulation. The amount was reported as $2,000,000. The bill, however, provided for the redemption of the bonds by the government, and the government would then be in a position to solve the whole railroad problem of the country, because it controlled the great transcontinental line with its connections and ramifications. Its policy would regulate the rates of all other lines under the operation of the general law of trade.
